FDR Bares Plans for Post-War Meetings

FOOD OUTPUT TALKS CALLED AMONG ALLIES

Other Conferences Expected To Deal With Economics and Finance.

EDEN ASKS FRAMEWORK

Wants U. S., Britain, Russia and China To Establish Collective Security.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt disclosed today that perhaps half a dozen United Nations conferences might be called to consider various phases of post-war problems.

Plans are already under way for a conference on food production and distribution for all the populations of the world in the period following the close of the conflict.

In addition the chief executive told a press conference, probably there would be a meeting on post-war relief. Beyond that, he said, there might be two or three or four other conferences, mainly in the fields of economics and finance.

Meanwhile, a plea by Anthony Eden that the United States, England, Russia and China mold their war-time unity into the framework for a lasting peace encouraged congressional advocates of collective security to new efforts.

Mr. Roosevelt gave no indication as to when or where the conferences might be held, but he indicated that invitations already have gone out to the United Nations for a food parley.

He said he hoped it would not be held in Washington and that he had four or five other smaller spots in mind in this country.

Once before, the president has expressed a view that a smaller place is more desirable for an important meeting, citing the success of his talks with Prime Min-

Burning and sinking of some of the 22 warships transports and cargo vessels lost by the Japs in the Battle of the Bismarck Sea is shown in these Royal Australian Air Force photos above, just received in the United States. The Japs received one hard-to-take lesson in the controversy of airplane vs seapower at a cost of 15,000 men in addition to the ships. The Americans and Australians lost one bomber and three fighter planes in the battle which proved disastrous to the Japs.

$30,000 LIQUOR ORDER PLANNED

Richland Permit Holders To Buy Out-of-State Supply To Meet Shortage.

As the state liquor board today eased regulations to allow liquor retailers to replenish their dwindling stocks by out-of-state purchases J B (Gyp) Miller, president of the Richland County Permit Holders association announced the group is arranging a $30,000 whisky purchase in Illinois or elsewhere.

Miller, proprietor of a night club at 192 Orange street, was advised by state officials that a modification has been ordered in mark-up provisions which had previously made such a relief measure virtually prohibitive.

"Nearly every tavern keeper in Mansfield and Richland county will participate in the purchase plan," Miller declared. Night club owners and holders of earlier-closing permits have been compelled to shut up their establishments hours before the regular time recently to conserve stocks as a result of the state's ignoring of their pleas for adequate supplies.

"We do not know exactly where or when we can obtain the supplies" Miller said but he said his association plans to get a shipment as quickly as possible.

Sees Red Cross War Fund Reach Goal of $59,000

L. W. Birch, chairman of the Mansfield and Richland County Red Cross War Fund Drive, today expressed confidence that the $59,000 goal would be reached by tomorrow night. A total of $46,970 has been raised.

Volunteer canvassers working untiringly for the past few weeks have been ringing doorbells throughout the city and returning where they found no one home in an effort to leave no person uncontacted. Today they reaped the benefits of their efforts as they pushed their house to house canvass over the top of the quota.

Solicitors of retail store, national industries and women's clubs also have gone beyond their quota through their diligent efforts in contacting these organizations.

County figures, although not complete, indicate that the quota will be reached and topped when final reports are made. Industrial reports are two thirds completed by this time.

Girl, Three Boys Arrested In 'Juke Box' Burglary Series

Accompanied by an 18-year-old girl, three Dayton brothers, 11, 14 and 18 years old, are in police custody today after allegedly confessing "juke box" burglaries early yesterday at Councilman Fred Miller's cafe 267 Orange street, and the Ohio cafe, 296 East Fourth street.

Patrolmen Carl Beard and Arthur Conrady "cracked" the burglary investigation at 1 a. m. today when they apprehended the two younger brothers in the vicinity of Park avenue east and Luther place.

The boys, unable to explain why they carried pliers and screwdrivers and were on the streets at that hour, finally led the officers to an East Fourth street hotel, where the girl and their 18-year-old brother were taken into custody.

According to Captain Paul Whipp, who took statements from the girl and her confederates, the quartet admitted coming here Tuesday in a stolen car. The oldest boy maintained for some time the party came from Dayton by bus after two of the brothers had escaped from a Montgomery county detention home.

Arresting officers and Captain Whipp reported the youths admitted the two cafe burglaries in which music boxes were looted of about $30. Beard and Conrady, acting on information they say was furnished by the girl, recovered the stolen car far out on Marion avenue.

SWEATER ROW IN NEWS ONCE MORE

Union to Ask Federal Intervention In Costume Quarrel.

BRIDGEPORT —(INS)— The great sweater controversy flared anew today at the Chance-Vought Aircraft company plant here, where gut workers have already walked out once because they were prohibited from wearing sweaters.

John Robinson, president of local of the U. A. W. which has been carrying on negotiations with the company, said the talks had been broken off and that the union will ask that a federal conciliator be provided.

A style show scheduled for today has been cancelled as a result he said. The company remains firm in its determination to bar "distracting" sweaters from the plant.

DISCUSS PAY

Miners, Operators Continue Secret Sessions.

NEW YORK —(INS)— With only 12 days remaining until the expiration of their contract, representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and Northern and Southern mine operators today continued to hold closed subcommittee meetings behind closed doors.

Negotiations between the union headed by John L. Lewis and operators of coal mines in the Appalachian region apparently were stalemated as the result of demand for a flat general $2 per day increase for 150,000 soft coal miners.

Other points of contention include demands of the union to include within its next contract some 30,000 minor bosses, including foremen and sub-foremen and provisions for timing the working day of miners from the time they enter the portal of the mine until they leave.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— A two-day strike at the Park Drop Forge company ended today as workers voted 170 to 13 to return to their jobs.

DECLARES U. S. HAS MANPOWER

Rickenbacker Asserts Problem One of Production, Raps 'Share the Work.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON —Declaring many American industries are still operating on a "share-the-work depression" basis, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker said today the nation had more manpower than it needed "if properly utilized."

Testifying before the senate military committee inquiring into the Austin-Wadsworth bill to draft men and women civilians into war production jobs, the flying ace of World War I declared "it's not a case of manpower problems but of production problems."

Reading from a page of notes, Rickenbacker said that from many discussions with able production men he was convinced about 5,500,000 men could be salvaged from the present war industries by adoption in all war plants of the incentive or

CHICAGO —(INS)— John A. Malloy, editorial assistant to Publisher William Randolph Hearst and executive editor of the Chicago Herald-American, died early today of a heart attack suffered while dining with friends in a restaurant.

Malloy had been afflicted with heart trouble for several years and on two occasions had survived grave crises.

CITY DIM-OUT WINS STATE'S O. K., PRAISE

Inspectors Declare Mansfield Qualifies For 20-County Black-Out Test.

ONE SIREN FAILS

Failure Causes Confusion In Downtown; Residential Areas Respond Quickly.

With only a few minor and unintentional infractions reported as a result of Thursday night's city-wide dim-out test, war department and state defense council observers declared Mansfield amply qualified to participate in the forthcoming 20-county black-out demonstration later this month.

Observers told Mayor W. J. Locke, chairman of the Office of Civilian Defense and Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch defense coordinator that "Mansfield complied more promptly and universally than almost any Ohio city yet tested." Several observers watching from Ashland hill were loud in their praise of the city's preparation designed for protection against possible air raids.

Faulty sirens caused scattering tardiness in compliance. Burning out of a siren in the downtown business area left only one commercial light burning after the 9 p. m. warning signal but this was extinguished immediately at the direction of an air warden. The siren on City Hall could be heard only faintly over traffic noises in the commercial section.

One other store was late in turning off lights due to confusion as to whether an employe or a warden was supposed to manipulate the control switch. An office in the Farmers bank building was illuminated after the alert signal at 9:05 but a warden finally brought a correction.

Households throughout the city and Madison township complied

FDR Says He Wants To Avoid National Labor Draft.

WASHINGTON (AP) President Roosevelt told a press conference today he wanted to avoid national service legislation just as long as he possibly could.

No decision has been reached on the question of drafting of workers for war industries, Mr. Roosevelt said and he added that it might be necessary to have it, or that eventually it would have to be put into effect.

Questioned as to why he wanted to avoid such legislation he said he thought it would create a lot more machinery, make things a lot more complicated in a lot of ways, and people would complain of regimentation.

Of course, he remarked you can't win a war without regimentation.

ESCAPE INJURY IN HEAVY BLAST

Workers Escape as Hydrogen Blows Up in New Jersey.

EDGEWATER, N. J. —(INS)— Despite the violence of the blasts, no one was reported injured today by the terrific explosion of a tank of hydrogen at the Spencer-Kellogg and Sons plant. A 35-foot-high tank of the gas blew up and gigantic blue flames arose to a height of a 10-story building.

A second blast then came from the same tank. The explosions were heard a mile and a half away. Fire which followed the blasts was quickly extinguished and other storage tanks were not affected. Officials said the explosion probably was caused by static electricity.

Wife of County Commissioner Given Uncontested Divorce.

Carrie B. Hout was granted a divorce from Ray Hout, member of the board of Richland county commissioners, in common pleas court this morning by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch who approved a prior property settlement entered by the couple.

The suit was uncontested with the decree granted on the plaintiff's petition charging neglect and cruelty.

Allies Advance To Sever Axis Coast Corridor

Patton Leads Americans In Rapid Push 73 Miles From Gabes; Nazis Hurl More Troops Into Soviet War, Claim Capture of Belgorod.

(By Associated Press)

Allied headquarters announced today American armored troops pushing toward the sea from newly recaptured Gafsa had seized the town of El Guetar after a 12-mile advance, while other Allied columns rolled across the central Tunisian hills in a drive aimed at cutting the 300-mile Axis coastal corridor.

Led by dynamic Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., who once challenged Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to single tank combat, the Americans were reported making rapid progress despite threacherous mine fields planted by the Nazis.

Gafsa fell to U. S. troops Wednesday without the loss of a single soldier.

In northern Tunisia, the Allied communique said, Lieut. Gen K A N Anderson's British First army withdrew slightly in the zig-zag struggle with Col Gen Jurgen von Arnim's Axis forces, falling back in the Tamera sector some 12 miles west of Bizerte.

Frontline dispatches said British First army troops withdrew Wednesday night from Tamera to new positions three miles to the southwest. The German high command said "an Axis local offensive enterprise is progressing favorably" in the northern sector.

Heavy rains and floods hampered operations on the central Tunisian front, dispatches said.

In the south, the British Eighth army executed "slight local adjustments" whose nature was not specified "with little interference by the enemy" in the Mareth line zone.

In addition to the U. S. armored thrust to El Guetar, 73 miles from the port of Gabes, other American forces were reported moving northeast along a road leading to Mahares on the gulf coast.

French troops also were joining in the offensive, driving eastward along the upper rim of the Chott Djerid salt marsh toward the coast.

Authoritative confirmation still was lacking on German reports the British Eighth army had launched a climactic assault on the Mareth line in southern Tunisia, and the Nazi-controlled Paris radio said the Eighth army's attacks had slackened.

While U. S. troops picked their way through mazes of booby traps and land mines planted by the Germans in their retreat from Gafsa, Allied warplanes hunted

TOKYO PREDICTS YANK OFFENSIVE

Declares Americans Ready For Big Attack as Allies Hit 14 Jap Pacific Bases.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—American airmen have carried out four more attacks against Japanese positions in the Solomons including two against Vila in the New Georgia group, the navy announced today.

(By Associated Press)

A Tokyo broadcast declared today that the United States was preparing to "launch out in a counter-offensive in the Pacific," even as Gen Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported the greatest Allied aerial sweep ever undertaken in the South sea battle theater.

"At this very moment," the Tokyo radio said, "America, regardless of the serious blows dealt her, is planning to carry out her warfare in the air and on the sea . . . in a counter-offensive against Nippon."

An Allied communique said United Nations airmen, virtually spread-eagling Japan's ring of island bases above Australia, attacked 14 enemy strongholds and in one of the heaviest assaults dropped 38 tons of bombs on the Japanese camp at Madang, New Guinea.

Allied bombers ranged across a 2,000-mile arc from Timor in the East Indies to New Ireland in the Bismarck sea, blasting airdromes, enemy-occupied towns, shipping and other targets.

On the Burma front, British headquarters reported a new flare-up of fighting on the Mayu peninsula the swampy jungle

Tells How Yanks Took Gafsa and Didn't Fire Shot

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE

GAFSA (U.P.) (Delayed)— A platoon of Americans headed by a second lieutenant from Chicago plus two men with mine detectors took Gafsa today.

Not a shot was fired. Nothing went wrong and they didn't even flush an enemy plane.

I can testify to that because Charles Corte, an Acme News pictures photographer, and I went into Gafsa with that first platoon. We entered the dusty, deserted streets of the oasis town while infantrymen with bayonets fixed fanned out in twos and three down side alleys.

Second Lieut. Everett Booth, Chicago, platoon commander, swung his tommy gun across his back and said:

"This is a sad disappointment. They cleared out. This happens so often."

Gafsa is not important, so the Axis withdrew without fighting, but leaving the usual booby traps and mines behind.

As we left Gafsa late today,

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Atty.-Gen Biddle today announced the indictment in New York of nine men for allegedly conspiring with George E Browne and Willie Bioff, former bosses of the AFL stagehands and motion picture operators union, to obtain more than $1,000,000 from four major motion picture corporations.

Browne and Bioff now are serving long terms in Leavenworth penitentiary for their part in the alleged conspiracy against Loews, Inc., Paramount Pictures, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., and Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.

The nine indicted are: Frank Nitto, alias Frank Nitti; Louis Campagna, Paul Delucia, Phil D'Andrea, Francis Maritote, Charles Gioe, Ralph Pierce, John Rosselli and Louis Kaufman.

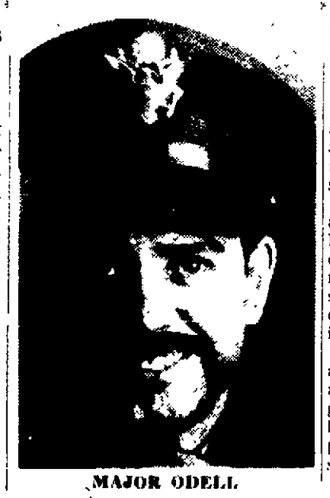
Shells Bursting Near Plane Sound Like 'Yapping Dogs' to Veteran Bomber Pilot

Major Odell Says Shots Seem to Be Harmless While In Air.

Far from being a terrifying experience, piloting a bomber through an anti-aircraft barrage seems harmless enough and the shells exploding outside the plane window sound like the sharp "yapping of a deep-voiced dog."

That's how Major William C. Odell, veteran U. S. army air corps pilot who is visiting in Mansfield this week, described his bombing mission over Nazi-occupied Europe and enemy fortifications in North Africa.

Major Odell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amery A. Odell, 246 Westbrook avenue, has just returned from the North African combat area and will report soon at the army school of applied tactics at Orlando, Fla., where he probably will be assigned to an instructor's post.



MAJOR ODELL

Major Odell has been overseas a year and while stationed in England made a number of trips over occupied Europe. Military restrictions prevented him from saying how many times he was on bombing missions. "Just say it was several times," he said.

"Being shot at by enemy anti-aircraft gunners seems harmless at the time, but you sometimes get a queer feeling when you look out the window and see the puffs of smoke that show where shells have been bursting around

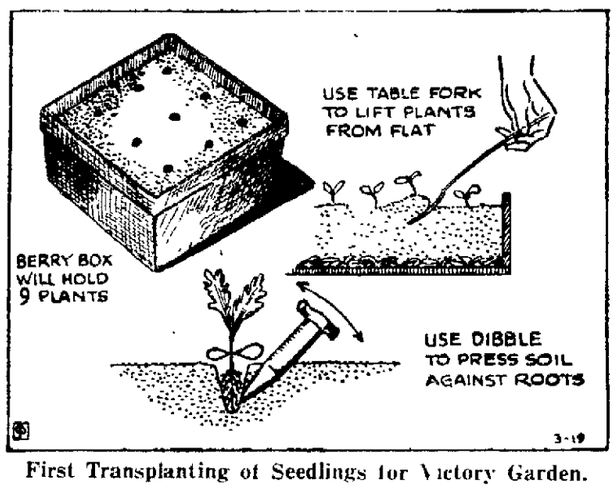
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



First Transplanting of Seedlings for Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released By Central Press Ass'n.

WHEN THE Victory garden seedlings have developed they should be moved to more roomy quarters. The seedlings at this time can be transplanted to another flat and spaced two inches apart or they can be moved into individual pots or one quart berry boxes

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph a wooden berry box will easily hold nine plants (three each way) No drainage material is required in the bottom of a berry box because of the cracks in its corner construction.

In preparation for transplanting water the flat several hours before the seedlings are to be lifted so that the soil will more readily cake and cling to the roots of the tiny plants As illustrated use an ordinary table fork to lift each plant, taking care of course not to loosen the ball of earth about the roots

In the soil into which a seedling is to be transferred make a hole large enough so the roots can be placed in position without crowding them Press the soil gently but firmly around the roots of each plant with a dibble as illustrated.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

Philip Veritzen spoke slowly, giving me a good opportunity to obey Dicky's request to "give Mary the once-over," and what I saw made me sympathize with Noel.

For Mary apparently had changed her plan of campaign since I last saw her When I asked her to "turn off her charm," so Olina might have a chance to keep Georges' attention, I believed, from her choice of that unbecoming gown Noel criticized so hotly and so futilely, that she meant to turn herself from the gay bird of paradise Georges remembered with such nostalgia into a colorless little wren But evidently realizing that she could not be convincing in such a role, she had groomed herself for a different one

Mary is a mistress of make-up and usually hers defies detection, so skillfully does it blend with her own natural coloring But tonight, with equal skill, she had made herself into almost a caricature yet with a professional touch which for me had a tinge of diabolism

She still had on that unbecoming gown, but while I knew that Mary, as herself, could have made everyone forget what she wore, in her present make-up she had made the gown obtrude its bad taste most effectively

But when Mary spoke I realized just what she was doing, and the knowledge came with a shock

"Hello, everybody!" she said with a high, inane giggle which somehow held melody but was a caricature of Mary's real laugh "What are you going to do to us, darling, for being so late—stick matches under our toenails and set fire to 'em?"

Veritzen Shocked.

She looked up into Philip Veritzen's face with a laughing mocking impudence which I suspected was new in his experience He flinched noticeably.

"I must have time to think up a fitting punishment for you, he told her Then she went with almost a dancing movement swaying her hips slightly and gave Olga a careless, almost rude Hello there, Darling!" as she passed her.

She did not accord Dicky or me even a side glance, but rushed toward Georges and Olina with her eyes fixed on the glamorous fugitive.

"'Lo, Lina!" she said, not looking at the girl, making hay while the sun shines, eh?"

Olina flushed and bit her lip at this unexpected rudeness, but Mary appeared to have eyes only for Georges

"I don't blame you," she rushed on "I could carry a torch for this baby myself Georges! Georges! Why, what a change! Regular transformation scene! Only you ought to have done it before mirrors on a stage, with colored lights shifting"

She looked him over from head to foot in apparent ecstatic approval, then grasped his hands with a movement so swift that even gallant, experienced Georges must have found it difficult to get his own hands stretched out in time for the clasp

"Oh boy, oh boy! Are you something!" she exclaimed

PROBE THE SITUATION

Part of the uncertainty can sometimes be eliminated from play of a contract that appears to depend on a guess If you have a lot of solid tricks in sight it may pay you to run off a bunch of them and see if the discards of the defenders give you any guide to the location of a key card This is especially true if the contract depends upon a choice between finessing against one defender or squeezing his partner

Up to North's 3-No Trump call the bidding of this deal certainly did not sound as if it was headed for a slam and West doubled more on its doubtful nature than on his own holding. Correct play by South would have been exactly the same without the double, but it undeniably made his job of finding the right path easier

After winning the opener with the diamond A he saw that the club finesse would have to work so made it and then ran all of the dummy's black cards These tricks carried him along to the tenth, on which he put forth the final spade from dummy At the time he held in dummy also the diamond J-6 and the heart 6, and in his own hand his four highest hearts, of which he discarded the 7.

Now it was West's job to play He knew that if he tossed off the diamond Q, the J which he could see in dummy would become good. So he picked a heart from his Q-8-2 That proved equally disastrous, for now the heart A and K dropped his Q making the J the taker of the thirteenth trick Notice that, if anything in the discarding had caused South to decide that East was protecting the heart Q, he could have finessed the J to trap it

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Are we inadvisedly starving our forces in the Pacific?

This is not a question of changing the basic plan of the war, which is to defeat Hitler first. It is a question of whether there is an ill-advised underemphasis in allocation of ships and planes to the Pacific area.

Clapper

Laymen like myself can have no intelligent judgment on such a matter, obviously. There would be no point in a layman raising the question at all except that I know it to be a fact that a number of important army and navy officers are very much concerned.

The question presents itself as to whether the case for the Pacific area has received sufficient pleading. It is a question whether the influences making decisions as to where supplies shall be sent are overwhelmingly concerned with the Atlantic rather than the Pacific for the time being.

The point is made that a little more in ships and planes would accomplish a great deal in the Pacific.

It is argued by those who know the facts that Japan has a narrow margin of flexible shipping, possibly less than the amount of our shipping that the Germans sink in one month.

If Japan is operating on such a narrow margin of shipping then the knocking out of that narrow margin becomes a most profitable operation. The methods used with such spectacular success by Gen. George C. Kenney in wiping out the Japanese convoy in the battle of the Bismarck sea, with insignificant losses on our side, is now giving all these arguments enormous force.

Another point is made to the effect that there is no such thing as "holding" in the Pacific. You must keep punching or you lose ground. Furthermore, if you undertake merely to hold you must then hold at a great many points, because you leave the initiative to the Japs. On the other hand, if we are on the "offensive-defensive" then we strike at times and places of our own choosing.

Such are the general arguments being made by military men in the hope of modifying what they consider to be "quasi-military, quasi-political" decisions on the part of the combined high command.

Important army and navy personnel in the Pacific and southwest Pacific areas feel quite intensely on this matter. They feel that a small percentage of additional planes and ships could be put to effective use in the Pacific now without noticeably weakening the enormous reservoir allocated on the Atlantic side.

This case will gain additional strength so long as the enormous quantities of material crossing the Atlantic are not put fully into action. The exploit of Gen. Kenney has excited the hopes of important officers throughout the Pacific and they are pressing their case very hard now.

There is no question of changing the program or the general plan of the war. Some officers might question whether it would have been better to knock out Japan first, but they recognize as everyone else does that such questions are entirely academic now.

The flow into the Atlantic to North Africa, to Russia, to the United Kingdom—is so large, and by comparison the flow into the Pacific is so small, that you might double some of the equipment in the Pacific without feeling the difference in the Atlantic pool.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

KANSAS CITY—What evidence have we, then, that Harold Franklin, the son of the president of the boilermakers' union, is now and for 17 years has been receiving a rakeoff from the premiums paid by the union members on compulsory life insurance?

Young Franklin denies all and William E. Walker, the secretary-treasurer of the union, which has national headquarters in Kansas City, Kan., insists that he has no knowledge of the fact. Franklin's father says nothing.

Pegler

First we have photostats of various documents in the deal between the union and the Occidental Life Insurance company of California, signed by the elder Franklin and Walter. There is also a photostat of young Franklin's commission agreement with the company, fixing his rakeoff on insurance which the workers are compelled to buy, failing which they are refused employment in shipyards building vessels for the war. Thus, to work in a shipyard a man must pay tribute to young Franklin, failing which he may be drafted and lose his life.

To go back to the start, there is on file in the U. S. district court of Kansas a suit by young Franklin against the Chicago National Life Insurance company, in which Franklin admitted that the company paid him $28,546.10 in commissions on the group insurance carried by his father's union and demanded $47,100.16 more. He based his claim on his services in writing this insurance business for the company and appended his contract. It began Oct. 1, 1926. No term was stated and a year later the company, finding the agreement unprofitable when it had to pay the union president's then 10 per cent of the premiums on compulsory insurance and 15 per cent on voluntary policies, made a new arrangement.

Thereby Franklin got $1000 a month for a year and 200 shares of stock in a company. He was beaten in court when a jury found for the company, on the contract which he denies and which the secretary-treasurer claims to know nothing of, is on file with the papers in the suit.

As recently as last August, young Franklin took part in another lawsuit which is still pending on appeal to the U. S. circuit court in Denver. In that case, another insurance company, the American National of Dallas which had succeeded to the business when Chicago National retired, recounted that it had insured the 58,000 members under a group contract. The contract ended on July 1, 1941, when President Franklin took it away and gave the business to his son's new connection, the Occidental.

In that suit, the American National asked for a declaratory judgment to the effect that young Franklin had broken his contract as agent and that the company owed him nothing. The petition said he had been paid $10,000 cash and 25 monthly installments of $300 each, or $17,500. Nevertheless, the company alleged that he had refused to use his best efforts and that he was instrumental in taking away the business and transferring it to Occidental to which he now transferred his own interest.

Now the American National's petition said, Franklin was demanding $18,000 more but would not bring the dispute to issue in court. Therefore the company asked the court to decide the matter one way or another and this the court did with a judgment for the company. This is the one that is now in the circuit court on young Franklin's appeal.

But before the case went to trial, young Franklin made an affidavit which refutes the present denials of himself and Walter and shows that he was agent for the Occidental. He thought Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins was prejudiced against him, and asked that another judge be assigned to hear the suit of American National. This request, incidentally, was granted.

It is easy to understand why both Franklins and Walter would prefer that the young man's insurance business with the union be kept quiet. But how they expect to get away with their denial when all this proof exists in sworn statements is not clear.

Rich as they were, young Franklin's rewards for the previous insurance on the members were petty by comparison with the commissions which he may now receive from the Occidental on the enormously increased membership of about 200,000, most of it involuntary. If the war goes two or three years more, he will be fixed for life. Not even Mrs. Roosevelt's salary limitation decree would have touched him for such commissions are not salary.

The gravy train is really highballing now.

CANNING SUGAR RATION PLAN UNDER SCRUTINY

OPA Chief Expected To Turn Down Proposal; Heavy Protest Seen.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A new OPA regulation placing sugar for home canning under the point rationing system was being held up today for the personal scrutiny of Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown.

An aid of the former Michigan senator, who has been in the midwest for the past several days, indicated that Brown probably would turn thumbs down on the proposal.

The regulation, drafted by some of OPA's ration experts, would require housewives to surrender an eight point blue stamp from war ration book two for each pound of sugar used in home canning.

It will likely meet with Brown's disapproval, one official said, because of his determination to keep the "bugs" out of OPA rationing measures and to make them as practical and acceptable to the public as possible.

The official, instrumental in deferring issuance of the new regulation, asserted that it would provoke a storm of protest among the country's 35,000,000 housewives at a time when the government is urging intensive home canning to supplement limited quantities of rationed foods.

Critical of the proposal, he also called attention to another OPA regulation which prohibits the transfer from one individual to another of more than 50 quarts of home canned foods.

"Some people seem to be afraid that little 'black markets' will develop, but that sounds like nonsense to me," he said. "If a farm wife, for example, wants to can a hundred quarts for her daughter in the city or for a neighbor working in a war plant, she should be permitted to do so."

Brown is expected to insist upon some simple and straight forward method of distributing sugar for home canning.

GETS MATERIAL AND GETS BLAME

Kaiser Co., Charged With Unauthorized Action, Bares Maritime Board Help.

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO—The Kaiser company, incorporated, among the nation's biggest shipbuilders, was charged in a war production board subpoena awaiting service today by the U. S. marshal's office with unauthorized acquisition of millions of dollars worth of vital war materials at its nearby Richmond shipyard No. 3.

In Washington, Henry Kaiser declared it "strange" that a company which is delivering more than sixty 10,000 ton ships monthly "should be accused that on an average of five times a month some one of its 200,000 employes made an error xxx. If we only made five mistakes per month, thank God we're that good."

The subpoena, charging 31 violations in the past six months, 29 of them concerned with procurement or acceptance of materials, was issued last night by Lowell Turrentine, WPB compliance commissioner. It directs the company to appear for a hearing at the regional WPB headquarters in San Francisco March 29.

Kaiser said he believed the public should know his company is "purchasing materials for another government agency—the maritime commission."

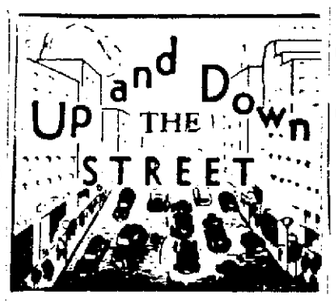
"We were only the agents for that department in obtaining materials needed for the ships," he said.

The company, the shipbuilder pointed out, is buying materials for eight shipyards of its own as well as for six other shipyards located principally in the Great Lakes region.

DIES AT AGE 83

WILLARD—Howard E. Osborne, 83, died at his home here, yesterday. He is survived by his widow.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the home with Rev. Homer A. Neff, pastor of Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial will be in Norwalk cemetery.



Appeal for funds to carry on their full program, as well as assurance of the missionaries' safety, was contained in a telegram the Rev. Joseph Averbeck, M.S.C., provincial superior of the society of Missionaries of the Sacred Heart, at Shelby, received yesterday from Bishop Yupin in Chungking, China. Chungking is the temporary capital of China with the headquarters of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek there. There are about 25 priests of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart working in the mission of Shitsien in the eastern part of the province of Kweichow, directly south of Chungking.

One Mansfielder today is bemoaning the fact that he had been one of the privileged few who HAD whisky in his home. Vern Jones, 212 Park avenue east, reported to police last midnight that when he returned home at 11:45 p. m., he found his front door had been pried open. Three quarts of whisky which he had left on his kitchen table were missing. Unable to sniff 20,000 or more breaths, police have written off the complaint as a closed incident.

A photograph of the scene accompanied the claim, showing a series of sinks in the street surface. "I was en route home after taking Councilman Mike Mihalick, chairman of the claims committee, to his home," Deyarmon reported.

SEEK SENTIMENT ON LABOR BILL

Legislators Sounding Out Constituents on Touchy Measure.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio legislators were back home, today testing sentiment on their biggest and most muddled war problem of the session—how to ease women's labor laws to furnish more workers for war plants and service industries.

The senate may let the touchy female labor bill cool next week until some course is charted through the maximum work-week controversy which caused one of the most resounding explosions in the senate since the Bricker regime began in 1939.

Representatives, meanwhile, still faced a vote next week on the bill to authorize establishment of county welfare departments, postponed again yesterday by the illness of one of its sponsors, Rep. Fred W. George, R., Hamilton. And the lower house hoped that next week might also bring a vote on the administration budget for 1943-1944.

Senate leaders said they hoped to bring out at least one bill relating to school financing—perhaps the proposal of Sen. Albert L. Daniels, R. Highland, to change the basis of school foundation payments so schools would not lose revenue for students excused to work on farms or part-time in factories.

The house passed the senate-approved bill of Senator Daniels which will increase the contribution of public utilities for maintenance of the state utilities commission from the present $200,000 to $275,000 a year.

The house also passed a bill authorizing banks and trust companies to establish common trust funds for collective investment of fiduciary funds.

PROMISES MASS PRODUCTION OF DIVE BOMBERS

Kaiser Secures $300,000,000 Worth of Contracts For Fighting Planes.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Henry J. Kaiser, the miracle builder, predicted today that he would soon be building dive bombers and fighting planes for the armed forces on a mass production basis.

"We're going to build planes, and more planes," he said.

Kaiser made his promise after a whirlwind round of meetings in Washington. It was based on the fact that he had rounded up more than $300,000,000 worth of plane contracts in the past two weeks by taking over plants of the Fleetwing and Brewster aircraft companies.

His conferences in Washington took him to the White House, the navy department and to offices of half a dozen different companies he directs. In between, he found time enough to tell a house committee that he didn't think the nation's coal miners would follow John L. Lewis for very long if Lewis calls a "strike" April 1.

Kaiser was asked about his assumption of the job as chairman of the board of Brewster Aeronautical corporation. Earlier, Sen. Truman (D., Mo.) chairman of the special senate committee investigating war production, had stated that the Brewster production record was "one of the poorest" of any war plant. The navy was also disappointed at Brewster output.

"What's wrong at Brewster?" Kaiser was asked.

"I'm making a study now," the human dynamo answered. "I'll have it finished in two days or so. Then we're going to start to build planes and more planes. I'm not going to say what's wrong at Brewster and I'm not going to criticize labor, nor the former Brewster management. It wouldn't help. What we want there is mass production. We'll get it. We'll start afresh and do the job."

Kaiser, in reply to another question, said that construction of his giant cargo airplane was on schedule, that the big ship would be ready in April as he promised.

Kaiser last fall stormed Washington with plans to build huge flying boxcars to beat the submarine menace and the shipping shortage. He said he could build 500 or 5,000 amid considerable opposition, he finally was given a go-ahead to build three of the giant flying boats.

Dayton School Strike Remains In Deadlock.

DAYTON—(U.P.)—The enforced vacation of 30,000 students and 1,100 teachers because of a week-long strike of maintenance employes which has closed 49 Dayton schools continued today with little indication that the schools would open Monday.

Negotiations between school board members and an official of the Municipal Employes union (AFL) again proved fruitless last night with the union adamant in its refusal of a proferred $10 monthly wage increase for approximately 160 maintenance employes.

The union sought wage increases ranging from 10 to 25 per cent according to occupation. The board offered the flat $10 increase.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Fans who were just a bit disappointed with the caliber of the kegling in last week-end's opening session of the Inter-City bowling tournament at Colony alleys, will hardly have the same complaint to make on the week-end coming up.

The Lorains are coming to town.

Thirteen of the 24 Lorain teams entered in the tourney are booked for action tomorrow night and Sunday, and they include some of the tournament's recognized top-notch bowlers.

Topping the list of Lorain entries is the Chris Cafe team, winners of this year's Lorain city championship tournament. Last year, as the Andorka Recreation team, they finished in second place in the Inter City with 3105 pins, just 15 pins off the pace set by Elyria Bowling Center, tourney titlists.

Bowling on this team are Bert Kuhn, secretary of the Lorain association, Dr. Frank Mramor, A. Korab, Attorney Joe Ujhelyi, former Ohio State football player, and Nick Ksenich. Kuhn was 7th in Inter-City singles last year with 689, and fifth in all-events with 1958.

They'll start out on alleys 7 and 8 at 10 o'clock tomorrow night.

Another hot Lorain team, the Employees Transit Lines, will be seen in action alongside the Chris Cafes tomorrow night.

Headed by A. M. Pollock, president of the Inter-City association, the Bus Drivers offer one of the outstanding individual performers of the tournament in Tony Pompein.

Last year Tony paired with Hank Andorka, now in the army, to set an all-time record in the Inter-City doubles with 1399 pins. He finished sixth in singles with 694, and sixth in all-events with 1927.

Other keglers on the Employees Transit team are M Yuhas, A Kristoff and J Jenkins.

The Transits and Chris Cafes are the two top teams of the fast Lorain Journal All Star league, and rolling on the same alleys tomorrow night they probably will draw the big share of the gallery.

They'll be back for singles and doubles Sunday at 1 p m

We'll all turn out to watch Lorain And Anthony (Pinpan) Pompein.

Here's news for money winners in the recent state Moose bowling tournament.

They can pick up their checks at the Colony alleys starting this evening.

Santa Claus in March! With antlers!

Moose tourney Manager Art Hilborn probably got the check distributing idea when the mail from Port Clinton brought him a check for $67.50 yesterday for sharing first place in the Port Clinton singles sweepstakes last Saturday night.

Hilborn and H Pulschen of Port Clinton tied for first with 815 in four lines. D Souder of Port Clinton drew down $25 for third place with 794 and Johnny Lupo, Mansfield, $20 for fourth at 781.

Barons Cop Series From Providence

(By Associated Press)

Coach Bill Cook of the Cleveland Barons is doubly elated today for not only have his Barons advanced to the semi-final round of the American Hockey league playoffs, but his stalwarts have eliminated his Brother Bun's Providence Reds from further competition in the post-season skirmishes.

Cleveland defeated the Reds 4-2, in overtime at Providence last night for its second straight victory in a best two out of three series. The Barons, who finished sixth in the league standings during the regular campaign, will now meet the winner of the Indianapolis-Pittsburgh series upon its completion. The Barons won the opener of their series, 3-0 on Tuesday night.

All-Ohio High School Cage Team Selected

Dean Hahn of Mansfield Tygers Receives Honorable Mention

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—As the 32 survivors of Ohio's 1,154 high school basketball teams square off for the regional championships this week-end, the Associated Press presents its annual all-state honorary squads selected on the basis of pre-tournament play.

The nominations, made with the cooperation of coaches, officials and sports writers, are based on individual talent alone. Won-lost records of the teams are tossed into the discard as the all-Ohio gives recognition to the outstanding stars who, because of poor breaks or inadequate team mates, fail to reach the state finals where they would have a chance at all-tournament mention.

The coaches agree that scores of individual stars are left along the wayside in the tournament race, as better-balanced but starless squads roll on toward the titles. Only six of the 16 finalists in the class A regionals won recognition among the first 15 all-Ohio selections, and only four of the remaining class B squads landed berths among the top 15 all-stars.

The remainder of the all-Ohio selections are buried somewhere along the trail with the 1122 teams which failed to reach the regionals.

About 25,000 players started the basketball season on the Ohio scholastic front, some 5,000 in class A and 20,000 in class B. That means the five first-stringers in class A were "1000 to 1 shots" in hitting the heights, while the class B first string berths went to one player out of each 4,000.

The kids won their berths through sheer individual ability to play basketball in all its phases. Scoring ability was among the prime requisites, but that ability alone could not win a place, for in several instances the first team selections were outscored by players given lesser berths.

Seniors made a clean sweep in the class A first team selections, but Webster Township's great junior center, Ralph Christen, was voted to the class B varsity. The other B selections are seniors.

Henry (Hank) Vaughn, Akron Central's great forward, probably had more ballots than any other Class A star, while Franklin (Junior) Coad, Utica forward was Class B's No. 1 choice.

Outstanding centers were numerous, but the Class A call finally went to Jack Wilson pivot star of the defending champion Xenia Central team. Jack, only survivor of the 1942 Kings, is credited with turning a flock of second-stringers into another near-champion team. Dick Wehr of Barnesville, Class A's leading scorer with 464 points in 21 tilts, wound up as the third string center, with Warren's scintillating Dom Venetta getting the second team bid.

That left such stars as Ernie Parks of Canton McKinley, Alex Groza of Martins Ferry, Bob Mason of Bellefontaine, Bob Wellman of Cincinnati Purcell, Jack Shaw of East Cleveland Shaw, Tom Connor of Dover and Vic Keller of Wauseon among the "honorable mentions."

The same was true of all the other positions there was too much talent to crowd into the limited number of berths. The choices were so close in some instances that the scholastic rating of the stars was taken into consideration in making the final selection.

They come from everywhere—cities, towns, villages, cross-roads, township and consolidated schools—and here they are:

Rockets Win Tourney Tilt

Top-Seeded Creighton Upset By W. & J. Team.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Toledo university's Rockets, the recognized cage champions of the state of Ohio, were over that first big hurdle today in their drive for nationwide basketball acclaim.

The Rockets, who won 20 and lost two in annexing the Buckeye state title during the regular season, brushed aside the first challenger of their national hopes last night, defeating Manhattan university 57 to 47 in the first round of the national invitation tournament in Madison Square Garden.

The victory advanced the all-freshman Ohio entry to the semi-finals of the tourney. They'll meet a surprising Washington and Jefferson team March 27.

W. & J. was seeded No 8, the bottom rating in the joust, but upset the dopesters in the other game on last night's card with a 43-42 triumph over Creighton university, the top-seeded entry which was undefeated in regular season play.

The Toledoans put on a fine show in eliminating the youthful Jaspers of Manhattan before a crowd of 16,265. With Charles (Jackrabbit) Harmon setting the pace, the Ohioans pulled away after the score had been tied seven times in the first 15 minutes and left the floor with a 25-20 halftime edge.

The Jaspers cut the margin to 40-37, but the Toledoans had too much finesse and pulled away to register a decisive triumph. Harmon and Toledo forward Bob Bolyard made 14 points each.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Greg Rice, who has no equal at picking 'em up and laying 'em down in track meets, puts a lot of store by the mental aspects of foot racing. . . . At least, he admits the reason he doesn't try conclusions with the milers is "mostly mental"—he doesn't know how well he can do at the mile and therefore wouldn't feel so sure of himself as he does at two miles. . . . And when he's shooting for a record, as he likely will be in tomorrow's Chicago relays, he doesn't "really try" until he sees how the first half mile goes.

NEW GAME

The most popular game among the New York Giants down at Lakewood, N. J., where they're supposedly training for the baseball season, is table tennis. . . . But since there are only two paddles at Brannick Arms, they've had to invent a new kind of doubles in which each team uses one paddle, passing it back and forth between two players. . . . To make it more confusing, Manager Mel Ott, a southpaw hitter, and Cliff Melton, a left-hand pitcher, both play right-handed.

SHORTS AND SHELLS

If the National League baseball games are called for any reason but the weather—Sunday curfews, catching trains, etc.—this year, they'll be regarded as "suspended" games and must be completed when the teams get together again. . . . Proxy Ford Frick figures a lot of games will be halted because of train connections.

SERVICE DEPT.

"Sergeant" Joe Muscato, the Buffalo heavyweight, is Pvt. Joe Muscato now. He's taking his basic military training at Camp Croft, S. C. . . . When Jack Jacobs, former Oklahoma halfback, was washed out of the army air corps because of four crippled toes on one foot, Harold Keith, the Sooner drumbeater, suggested they got that way when Jack punted a wet football 86 yards against Santa Clara.

LAUGH OF THE WEEK

Explanation by Proxy Tom Lockhart of the Eastern Amateur Hockey league of why his clubs can "borrow" pro players for their playoff games: "It's an extension of the lend-lease system under which professional clubs have been borrowing an amateur here and there for one or two games. The amateur's status is not affected and the professional playing the odd games for an amateur club remains a professional."

Callura Defeats Wilson Once More

BOSTON—(AP)—Jackie Callura, of Hamilton, Ont., holder of the National Boxing association featherweight title, today boasted his second successful crown defense after a bruising 15-round struggle with Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson.

A crowd of 4,318 loosed a hearty chorus of boos last night when it was announced that Referee Johnny Martin had voted for challenger Wilson while both judges chose Callura in the first fight for both since the Canadian won the title from his opponent at Providence, R. I., last Jan. 18.

Callura used a style reminiscent of a longshoreman's to wrestle and butt his way to the decision over Wilson despite deep cuts inflicted over both eyes by the challenger's rapier-like left.

The Pittsburgher went to the canvass in the second when Callura employed his wrestling tactics effectively. On another occasion the champion lunged over Wilson's head into the press row.

Callura weighed 125¾, Wilson, 125½.

STOCK LEADERS STAGE ADVANCE BY FRACTIONS

Week's Retail Merchandising Sales Drop Off, But Keep Up With 1942 Mark.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks advanced fractions in today's early market transactions.

In front of a fairly active opening were Bethlehem, American Sugar, General Electric, American Smelting, Goodrich, Kennecott, Baltimore & Ohio and International Harvester.

Followers of merchandising shares noted the Dun & Bradstreet survey which found this week's retail sales generally below the aggregate reached early in the month but still holding around last year's large volume. Fluctuating spending was attributed partly to weather conditions.

Romance and spy-thrills in the nation's capital form the theme of Samuel Goldwyn's new comedy, "They Got Me Covered," which co-stars Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour. Designed strictly for laughing purposes, the film presents Hope as an erratic foreign correspondent for a big name syndicate, Miss Lamour as the manager of the syndicate's Washington bureau and the girlfriend of the correspondent. Then he is fired for muffing a big story, the newsman goes to Washington for consolation, but soon finds he is on the trail of the biggest story of his career—the complete plans of Axis espionage in this country, and how it operates.

The Hard Way.

Two sisters, one loving, the other hating each other, are the roles played by Ida Lupino and Joan Leslie in the new Warner Brothers picture, "The Hard Way," opening tomorrow at the Madison. The film is a tense, moving drama of a woman's driving, ruthless ambition coupled with an intense love for her sister. The musical production, "Hi, Buddy," is the co-attraction.

Robinson Film.

Edward G. Robinson plays a cynical Bowery character in "Tales of Manhattan," continuing today at the Ritz. The cast includes Charles Boyer, Rita Hayworth and more than 30 other stars. Second picture is "The Omaha Trail," story of the railroad pioneers. The stars of the picture are James Craig, Pamela Blake, and Dean Jagger.

MEASLES BREAK OUT IN BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus' few remaining overworked physicians faced additional responsibilities Wednesday and Thursday when an epidemic of measles broke out in the city and caused considerable absenteeism in schools and businesses.

About 20 children were sent home from school Wednesday afternoon and by Thursday morning 195 failed to report for class work in the public and parochial school systems. Most of the absent pupils are in the south and southwestern part of the city.

GROUP ELECTS NEW MEMBERS

BUCYRUS—E. B. Ruhl and Joe Neff were voted to membership on the Oakwood Cemetery Trustees' association at the organization's annual meeting Thursday.

They will replace the late R. V. Sears and Wallace Monnett, who died since the last annual meeting.

W. A. Blicke was elected president by the trustees, E. G. Beal was named vice president, and C. V. Vollrath, secretary-treasurer. Directors continuing in office are J. K. Myers, H. E. Kiess, R. B. Picking and the officers.

YANKS CAPTURE EL GUETAR IN TUNISIA PUSH

Americans 73 Miles From Gabes; Nazis Claim Belgorod Taken.

down the Nazis and blasted enemy supply lines.

Military analysts said General Patton's drive was part of a two-way squeeze to compel Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to stand and fight—instead of rapidly shifting his armor from sector to sector or withdraw from the Mareth line into northern Tunisia.

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches said the Germans had thrown fresh masses of troops, tanks and planes into the bloody struggle for control of the upper Donets river, 15 miles east of Kharkov, but despite the tremendous pressure the Red armies yielded slightly in only one sector.

Hitler's high command said German troops had recaptured Belgorod, 50 miles northeast of Kharkov, and delivered successful attacks northwest of Kursk.

The Nazi command said heavy Russian attacks were beaten off south of Orel, which lies 80 miles north of Kursk, and asserted that Soviet troops encircled below Kharkov were "annihilated."

Frontline reports said the German attacks were as violent as any attempted since the siege of Stalingrad, with the Nazis suffering huge losses in "ceaseless and uninterrupted" thrusts along the river.

On the central front, the Red armies driving along the old Napoleonic highway to Smolensk, vital German base 230 miles west of Moscow, captured more towns beyond newly retaken Izdeshkovo, 75 miles east of Smolensk, and widened their salient on the upper Dnieper river, the Russians said.

Farther north, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces reported the slaughter of 800 Germans as Red army shock troops seized more villages on the approaches to the German bastion at Staraya Russa, south of Lake Ilmen.

In the western air war, bad weather apparently grounded RAF night raiders following yesterday's two-hour daylight assault by U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators on the German U-boat nest at Vegesack, 15 miles northwest of Bremen.

Other developments in the European conflict:

ITALY—U. S. headquarters in Cairo said American Liberator bombers twice attacked the Italian port of Naples yesterday, once in daylight and again after dark. Heavy clouds obscured the results.

SUBMARINE WARFARE—The British admiralty announced two British submarines sank six Axis ships, a tanker and a naval auxiliary in a 10-day sweep in the Mediterranean.

In the Atlantic, the German high command asserted U-boats "are engaged in fierce fighting with convoys" with operations still in progress over a large area. The claim lacked any Allied confirmation.

Yanks Shoot Nazis 'Like Clay Pigeons'

LONDON —(AP)— United States air force bombers hit hard at the heart of Germany's U-boat strength again with a two-hour attack yesterday on Vegesack, 15 miles northwest of Bremen, their fourth foray in force on Germany proper.

Flying without fighter plane escort on the 800-mile round trip that marked the deepest penetration yet effected by Flying Fortresses and Liberators in their daylight attacks on Germany, the American fliers fended off nearly five-score German fighter planes, laid a heavy load of explosives on a submarine construction center, and then fought their way back over the North sea with the loss of two bombers, a communique said.

Many of the enemy fighter planes were destroyed or damaged, it was announced.

"It was just like shooting clay pigeons," remarked Lieut. James Divinney of Atlantic City, bombardier of the Susie Q. "I don't know how many we shot at . . . . The Susie Q crew scored possibly five German victims."

Deadly Focke-Wulfs, slower Messerschmitt 110's and some dunkers 88's were in the attacking force, many of them bearing the silver and black paint that marked them as usually reserved for night fighting.

One bomber crew said a direct hit was scored on a submarine. Installations in the repair yards and partly-completed U-boats were seen by the bombardiers.

The Vegesack foray broke a 48-hour lull in the daylight offensive against the continent.

RAF Venturas went out also to bomb Maashuis in the Rotterdam, Holland, area.

Before the U. S. communique was issued the Berlin radio asserted the Americans had suffered a "heavy defeat" with the loss of seven planes on the raid.

German raiders struck back late last night, dropping some bombs on the East Anglian coast of Britain and causing a small number of casualties. Three enemy planes were reported downed.

The German communique said Nazi planes attacked Norwich and the harbor of Great Yarmouth and that three aircraft were missing.

A period of bad flying weather on the continent is believed the reason the Germans have been given a week's breather from the RAF's devastating night bombing raids.

The belief was expressed the thunderbolt raids would be turned on again once the weather improves.

Strongarm Squads Hunt French Workers

LONDON —(U.P.)— German strongarm squads have started house-to-house searches for French workers defying a labor roundup aimed at sending 1,000,000 Frenchmen to Germany within three months, underground reports from the continent said today.

The latest reports of simmering violence in France said Pierre Laval, Vichy chief of government, had promised Adolf Hitler 1,000,000 French workers for his war factories. Since the first of the year 380,000 have been conscripted.

The countrywide rebellion against the roundup was reflected in reports that the French were refusing in wholesale lots to heed the Nazi-Vichy summonses, with occupation authorities trying to route the dissidents out of their hiding places.

Other advices from Europe said French mobile police were deserting to the guerrilla forces in the mountainious Haute-Savoie border area in such numbers that regular Axis detachments had been forced to take over.

Tells How British Held Mediterranean

LONDON —(U.P.)— The British navy held the eastern Mediterranean by a slender thread during the first 18 months of the war, using an outnumbered but never outclassed force of ships and planes in a series of actions that prevented the Axis from sweeping eastward to the Indian ocean.

The admiralty told the story of that valiant stand today in an official publication entitled "East of Malta, and West of Suez."

Forces fighting against the heaviest odds in British naval history prevented the fall of Malta, Suez, and Alexandria, made possible campaigns in Abyssinia and Syria, and escorted 780 ships to North African ports.

The admiralty revealed that the Suez Canal once was completely blocked and that the situation at times was so desperate that single carrier-based airmen defended the British Mediterranean fleet.

British torpedo planes from the carrier Illustrious crippled half of the Italian battle fleet in Taranto Harbor Nov. 11, 1940. Then the British boldly sailed into the battle of Matapan on March 27, 1941, sinking three Italian cruisers and two destroyers without losing a ship.

The admiralty account ends with the battle of Matapan. It does not describe the losses suffered in the battle for Crete.

$30,000 LIQUOR ORDER PLANNED

Richland Permit Holders To Buy Out-of-State Supply To Meet Shortage.

rector, in announcing the board's latest relief action, analyzed the "special order" in this manner:

"It has come to my attention and to the attention of the board that some permitholders claim they can purchase liquor from jobbers in other states. So in an effort to aid the permitholders we are going to let them buy liquor direct from jobbers or wholesalers on 'special order.'

"However, all liquor will have to be shipped by common carrier to the state warehouses so that state stamps can be placed on the bottles.

"In placing 'special orders' permitholders will first have to locate the whiskey, and if it is not listed for sale in state stores, it will have to be analyzed by our chemist, for the protection of the general public. The permitholder will then pay for the liquor, notify the department of the purchase and the department on receipt of an invoice will collect the amount of the state mark-up and issue a consent for shipping the merchandise."

The "special order" liquor, Fisher explained, can be purchased at an average price mark-up of 42 per cent instead of the prevailing 75 per cent.

"When the liquor is received at the warehouse or store," Fisher added, "checked through and properly stamped, the permittee will be notified that he may pick up his merchandise."

The "special order" provision was made to apply to D-3, D-4 and D-5 permitholders.

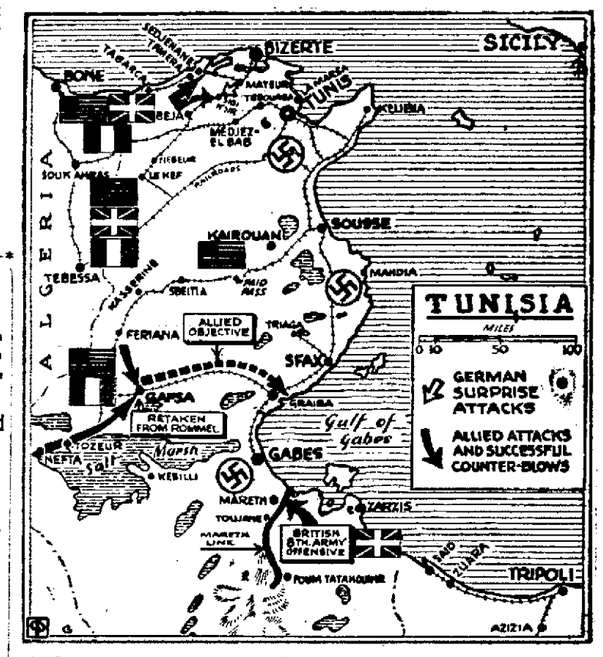
Meanwhile, Mansfield's two state stores have received no information indicating that relief is in sight beyond the action of Ohio's house Wednesday passing a ration system bill which is pending in the senate.

Long lines of almost the same people continue to wait before the store doors at 1 p. m. daily to grab the one-seventh of the week's supply which is offered before the doors are closed. Tomorrow will bring the sale of a two-sevenths allocation to cover Sunday.

It was reported yesterday that a colored man who stood patiently for an hour in the line-up offered repeatedly to sell his position for $1, or more, finally accepting 15 cents as he neared the door and quite apparently lacked the price of a bottle.

As Yanks Captured Gafsa and Swept Beyond

An American armored unit waits the zero hour for its drive on Gafsa, Tunisian desert town, in the top photo. Yanks took the town without firing a shot. The Axis forces had abandoned the site and even most of the Arab population had fled. Led by General Patton, the Americans moved east, as shown by the broken arrow in the map below, in a drive to eventually close the coastal corridor past Gabes.



CITY'S DIM-OUT WINS PRAISE

"beautifully" Police Captain Jesse J. Schwab, defense commander, said.

OCD officials praised the effectiveness in blacking out General hospital where Stanley Blackstone is the sector warden and Don Ogden the zone leader.

Engineers from the company which supplied the city's 10 sirens have been requested to immediately determine what corrective measures will be necessary to increase their warning power. Judge Kalbfleisch announced today that three additional sirens are en route here to be installed in "blind" spots over the city.

During last night's test air wardens covered every sector of the city while auxiliary police patrolled scores of sections. City police under the direct supervision of Chief Meade K. Bates cruised almost every block, reporting almost 100 per cent compliance by householders.

In the district black-out street lights and traffic lights will be blacked out as well as all structures excepting war plants at work and certified as being qualified to comply with the regulations.

It was noted by air wardens last night that pedestrians willingly stood in doorways or stairways during the test and motorists extinguished all lights on their vehicles or operated on dim lights.

During black-outs all non-essential traffic will be halted, only emergency vehicles being permitted to travel.

WILL GET GAS

Farmers Told They'll Receive Plenty Of Motor Fuel.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, advised all farmers to plan their 1943 crops "with the assurance that they will be able to obtain enough gasoline for all necessary truck operations, local fuel supplies permitting."

Girl, Three Boys Arrested In 'Juke Box' Burglary Series

Mansfield police today that an older brother is an inmate of Ohio State reformatory here while another is in the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster.

In addition to the tools they carried, the two youngsters first apprehended also carried a twisted padlock and a check was being made in the vicinity today to determine if any burglary had been committed.

Conrady and Beard noted the resemblance of these boys to descriptions of a pair reported having been seen in the vicinity of the Miller and Ohio cafes early yesterday. The patrolmen said the youngsters "cleverly" made no effort to escape this morning, but approached the cruiser as it was being slowed down to permit a questioning.

The two older "bandits" were confined today in city jail but the younger boys were being held at the Salvation Army citadel pending disposition of the case by police and juvenile court authorities.

piece work plan.

Under the incentive plan as opposed to the 40-hour work week and hourly pay rates, he said it would be "ultra conservative" to figure a 33 1-3 per cent increase in production.

(The wage-hour law requires payment of time and a half for work over 40 hours).

"That would have about 5,500,000 men and would give us the additional men needed for agriculture and for other war industries," Rickenbacker added.

The flier expressed a belief former farm workers now in industry should be instructed to "go back to the farms" or be drafted.

"They certainly should be in uniform," he added, "prior to those babies of 17 and 18. Their places in industry could be taken by plenty of persons over 38 who are willing and anxious to get into war work."

F. C. BALL DIES

Indiana Glass Manufacturer Stricken at Age 85.

MUNCIE, Ind.—(U.P.)—Frank C. Ball, 85, multi-millionaire president of Ball Brothers company, largest manufacturer of glass jars, died at his home today after an illness of several weeks.

Ball was born in Greensburg, O., on Nov. 24, 1857. His first business venture was in partnership with his brother, Edmund, in the manufacture of fish kits.

First Conference To Take Up Food Production For Entire World.

ister Winston Churchill at Casablanca.

While a tentative date has been picked for the food discussions, Mr. Roosevelt would not specify the one in mind. It is expected to take place, however, within two months.

Among those most pleased by the British foreign minister's plea were the originators of a senate resolution to bring the United Nations together on broad war and peace problems.

Mr. Roosevelt commented he was not cool toward the resolution and he had endorsed its broad principles.

Its sponsors talked it over with the president last Sunday. At a press conference Tuesday, a reporter remarked, some impressions developed Mr. Roosevelt was cool toward the proposal.

Asked directly what he thought of it, the chief executive replied today he wasn't cool toward it at all. He said it was purely a senate resolution and purely within the rights of the senate to pass.

On certain objectives, looking toward a more secure peace of the world, he said he thought it would be helpful sometime to have the world know the United States was ready and willing to help maintain future peace. But he said he did not discuss with the senators the language and various clauses of the resolution because it was purely within the right of the senate to draft them.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred yesterday, for the second time, with three state department officials headed by Secretary Hull and three outsiders on post-war issues and the White House indicated the six would be coming in regularly for further talks.

While projected conferences on relief and food were taken up yesterday, the president said, there also was a general consideration of various other post-war matters. He did not list them.

GET WARNING

Drivers Told March 31 Last Day For Permits.

Motorists who fail to purchase their 1943 drivers' license before March 31 will be required to take an examinaton before they can obtain them, Deputy Registrar Jack Berger warned today.

Examinations will be required of those persons who did not get their driving permits before the deadline last Oct. 1 for various reasons, chiefly because they had not been driving their cars. The six-month "grace period" to March 31 is allowed them before the examination requirement takes effect, Berger explained.

Motorists will be required to apply for a learners' permit, and take the same test given new applicants. These tests will be conducted on Fridays and Saturdays at state highway patrol headquarters. Drivers will be tested on state driving laws and must have their eyesight checked.

BURSTING SHELLS SOUND LIKE 'YAPPING DOGS,' PILOT SAYS

you. They look like big cotton balls," Major Odell related.

The smoke puffs are like thunder. They don't do any damage. It's what happened before that counts.

An eerie sight for the night flier, Major Odell said, is the bright trail left by a tracer bullet as it climbs toward him and then doesn't quite reach its mark, arching harmlessly to the earth. The gunners at the rear of the plane get to see more than the pilot, however, he added.

The big bombers fly above the range of the smaller anti-aircraft guns, but the Germans have more powerful batteries that once knocked off an Allied plane at more than 35,000 feet.

Bursting shells make the path rough for the pilot, leaving air pockets and creating blasts that toss his ship about like waves on the sea, the veteran pilot said.

Planes flying in danger areas are maneuvered to make them bad targets for the anti-aircraft gunners, since it's much easier for the gunner to follow his target along a straight path, Major Odell said.

The pilot over enemy territory expects to return from about every third trip with his plane damaged by shellfire. Major Odell said his ships have been hit a number of times, but he's never had to bail out.

He's been in the army five years, enlisting following his graduation from the school of engineering at Washington university, St. Louis. At first he was in the anti-aircraft division, but he decided to take up flying, he said, after learning that it had more action to offer. He has never lived in Mansfield, his family moving here from Iowa after he enlisted for service.

The Odell family is aviation-minded. Major Odell's father is war training service coordinator at the Mansfield airport and his brother, Capt. Howard Odell, is with the army air corps in Texas.

Tells How Yanks Took Gafsa and Didn't Fire Shot

American light and heavy equipment and infantry were moving through the town to carry the fight eastward into the hills—or farther.

The advance into Gafsa, except for occasional delays to clean up mines, sudden reports of artillery behind us and an occasional plane overhead, might have been a spring excursion into the fringes of America's southwest desert.

We approached the town down a broad asphalt road through scrubby semi-desert countryside.

Most of the Arabs had fled Gafsa to the hills when the bombers came over and the few that remained or straggled in later said 'hello,' and begged cigarets.

Sgt. Glen Cooper of Milaca, Minn., and Corp John Moggy, (1306 10th St.) Moundsville, W. Va., smoked rare American cigarets in the sunshine while waiting to move their self-propelled gun forward.

region along the Bay of Bengal—but said Japanese pressure slackened east of the Mayu river.

"Fighting continues in the area of Taungmaw, 16 miles north of Rathedaung. The enemy has dug in the hills east of this village," the British command said.

Rathedaung lies 25 miles northwest of the big Japanese coastal base at Akyab, the target of an offensive by Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's British forces from India.

Japanese pressure east of the Mayu river previously had forced the British to fall back to prevent the isolation of forward troops in the Rathedaung sector.

In the skies, Allied bombers continued to bomb and machine-gun Japanese rail traffic, truck convoy, airdromes and railway yards and left fires burning in a raid on enemy-occupied Mandalay.

Fighting Flares In Western Burma

NEW DELHI—(UP)—Fighting broke out again today in the Mayu peninsula area of western Burma, north of Rathedaung, as Japanese forces dug in near Maundgaw to meet British attacks, a headquarters communique said today.

Enemy pressure on the east side of the Mayu river was reported to have slackened as Japanese units took to shallow trenches in the hills east of Maundgaw, approximately 16 miles north of Rathedaung.

CHAPTER XX

Forgetting Scott and then remembering him, Carol arose quickly and went to the living-room. Scott, thumbing a magazine, got up and gave her a long, thoughtful glance.

She took a chair opposite him and tried to smother a sigh.

Scott said, leaning forward, "I hope you have good weather going down. I wish I were going along."

She rested her head on the back of the chair and looked at him. Were they to go on saying words that didn't mean anything indefinitely?

She looked at him, trying to catch his evasive eyes and hold them.

"You were very quiet tonight, Scott. You've been very quiet a good bit recently. Have I—have I become a responsibility?" She tried to be kind as she went on, "You aren't an easy person to know. But I don't want to be and I don't have to be—a girl you're stuck with."

He started, flushing. "Where did you ever get such an idea?" There was sharpness and alarm in his voice. Then, not looking at her, but looking at the crystal ash tray into which he slowly flicked the ash of his cigaret he said, low, "I—I don't exactly know how to say it, Carol. But I wanted to say it before you went away. I—"

If he loved her, then she must stop wishing that he would leave. She must be kind and help him say what he seemed incapable of saying. Was he trying to tell her at last that he loved her? Then why was it so difficult to say something so simple and natural? Scott, who sold insurance for a living, could not be as inarticulate as that!

She did not love him. He was still Bill's old friend. He was the same little-known Scott who had come to their house and helped himself to their food and liquor and spent the night. Her changed status had not changed her feelings toward Scott in the least. It was as though during all these months she had been with him fairly frequently that Bill was with them as he had always been in the past, sitting there looking at Scott, she knew that she did not want even the hint of affection from those hands any more.

But if he loved her in that unknown way of his, then at least she must be kind. She knew how ruthless one could be when one loved and the other did not. Perhaps that night in November Bill felt as she felt now—tired, but patient and pitifully out of love. How was Bill? She did not know. No one ever spoke about him to her.

"Yes, Scott?"

He took a deep breath. "I—well, I want to marry you, Carol. But I . . . have to tell you I haven't much to offer, and with Hilda . . . I can't say the things I want to say because of money . . . You've had everything and I wouldn't want to touch a penny of Bill's money but—"

But! Though her eyes sprang alive, her body felt rigid. But! . . . It was as plain as if he had told her! How stupid he was to put his case so poorly! She did not say anything at once and Scott, lighting another cigaret, did not look at her. And she did not say anything because her thoughts were going back over the months they had been together . . . She frowned. It was as though the lost piece of a puzzle had been found and put together and the puzzle was solved at last.

She was so ashamed for him that she lowered her eyes. Neither loyalty nor devotion had inspired Scott's companionship. Behind the smooth dark head of which she had seen so much and behind those handsome unfathomable eyes plans had been making to insure Scott's safety and comfort. If only he had not thoughtlessly added "but" . . . A slip of the tongue revealing Scott, solving him.

She felt a little sick, too. Was no one to be trusted? No one? She could forgive his shallowness and conceit and ambition, but she could not forgive his wanting to marry her for the money Bill's father had left him. Hadn't Bill been more honest than Scott? And Scott felt so superior to Bill these days, so ready to tear him apart verbally. Carol thought, "I wonder if I have ever been so small to anyone as Scott is to me now. We haven't been drifting along on a pleasant course all these months as I thought. Each time he has seen me has been a step closer to this. He doesn't think I know. He thinks I'm too desperate and too lonely and perhaps too anxious to be married again. Maybe he thinks, too, that I can't live without love much longer . . . Well, I have and I can. I can!"

He looked up and smiled his most appealing smile. "I've made an awful mess of telling you, Carol. But I . . . I love you. I think I've been in love with you for years . . . even before—"

She could not let him go on. "But I haven't any money, really. There was a settlement, but I haven't touched it and I don't intend to. It's for that proverbial rainy day. Bill's father worked terribly hard for that money. In a way, it shouldn't belong to me, but Bill wanted me to have it for security. My alimony, of course will stop when and if I marry again."

"But, Carol, I didn't mean . . . You've got the wrong idea."

She shook her head and smiled at him sadly. She wasn't hurt. She was glad for that. Disappointed, yes, and disgusted and somehow, too, a little amused. And never had she felt stronger or more capable of dealing with a delicate situation.

"Scott, forgive me, but I can't help being a little amused that a man thinks a proposal of marriage enough without first asking whether or not the woman happens to love him enough. I'm sorry, but I don't love you enough. We haven't enough in ourselves for a happy marriage. And when I come back, I . . . I don't think we should see so much of each other."

Flushing, he lowered his eyes. "I see. I'm sorry."

"Your sister Hilda has done so much for you. I couldn't take anything away from her. She loves you so unselfishly, Scott." She had seen Hilda on the street recently and noted the mended run in her stocking and the cheap cotton gloves—while Scott drove a new, red car.

"She's a great old gal all right."

Like a door that had closed, shutting her out she could not solve him now. She did not know whether he was relieved or disappointed at the failure of his plan. Somehow she felt that he was relieved because he actually did not want to marry anybody. Hilda had made herself indispensable to him with her work and sacrifice and service. Scott was in a rut and thought at times he tried to pull himself out of it and made an effort, he was always relieved when he sank back into it and found himself once more free with Hilda at his beck and call.

Carol said, "I hope I haven't been too harsh with you." In a moment of anger she wished that she could be cruel and lash out at him, saying she knew what had been going on in his mind all these months. Instead she was going on the defensive, making him feel that it was she who was letting him down. She was making Scott's exit easy and dignified for him so that he could go away feeling that his secret had not been discovered. Because she hated scenes . . . No doubt he was thinking that he had handled it well with nothing gained and nothing lost.

He said, "If you don't love me enough, that—that settles it. I suppose I thought you did. I don't know . . . I'm all mixed up tonight. I think I'll be running along. . . . You probably have things to do."

At the door she held out her hand and said, "Good-bye, Scott."

"Good-bye, Carol. I—I still think you're swell and I hope you have a great time. We'll get together when you get back. Drop me a line."

She nodded. Words. More words again. When she closed the door after him she thought, "Is this what always happens to your former husband's friend? There goes Scott . . . And there goes another friend. Outside getting into the new car which probably isn't paid for and which was bought to impress the people at the country club, he's probably congratulating himself that he came out free and not engaged to a woman who won't touch her capital. He's congratulating himself that all he wanted with me . . . was time."

Getting into the car on which he owed ten more installments, Scott felt the perspiration on his forehead turn to icicles. She wouldn't touch that money . . . Lucky he'd found it out in time. It was a close call, all right. How could he support two women and pay on the car?

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

Malaria has been known as a disease of man since ancient times; its cure was discovered in the 17th century.

In a war for survival we must not seek individual advantage. If we do, most of us will be bound in the end to suffer from our own selfishness.—James F. Byrnes.

Lewis Challenges U. S. Government

THE PROCESSES of democracy, as they have thus far been developed, seem strangely weak when called upon to cope with minority rebellion instigated by one powerful, shrewd and ruthless man who has shown himself capable of aligning one relatively small group against the authority of government and in opposition to public interest.

Such a man is John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers union, and the case in point is the present threat of a strike by Lewis, as spokesman for bituminous miners, unless their demand for $2 a day wage increase is granted before April 1—which now looms ominously less than two weeks ahead.

Lewis' action is in total disregard of efforts of the War Labor Board to set up an equitable wage formula under which to guard the nation against runaway inflation brought on by steadily mounting wages and prices, and also ignores the urgency of uninterrupted production of coal to meet war needs.

His terse pronouncement that unless a new contract which meets the miners' demands for wage increases is signed before April 1, "the miners will not trespass your property," is a clearly understood strike threat, although the supplementary assertion, "They are law abiding," cannot be so trustfully accepted in view of acts of violence associated with some previous mine strikes.

The policy of this administration heretofore has been to adopt a mild and placatory attitude on all matters involving any phase of organized labor, as evidenced by some of the extremely high war wages that have been sanctioned and the enforcement of union membership, with exorbitant fees and dues-collecting racketeering in connection with war construction projects.

The important matter now to be decided is whether or not John L. Lewis is more powerful than government—and this is made even more than ordinarily important by the fact that this nation is engaged in a war that is still far from being won.

What's Holding Up Sales Tax Cut?

WHAT'S the cause of the delay in repealing the state sales tax on food served in public eating places, and on prescription medicines, as was recommended to the legislature by Governor Bricker early in January?

The senate voted, 24-0, late in January, to remove this tax, but the house has dallied along for two months without taking action which would save taxpayers around $14,000 a day on these items—and this is money that the state DOESN'T NEED!

There must be a reason—probably political—for this delay—and the people of Ohio have a right to ask, from their representatives in the state assembly, what that reason is.

Early Mention of Annual Complaint

BEFORE the subject reaches the seasonal point of aligning neighbor against neighbor, at a time when unity is being strongly stressed, it seems timely to make brief mention of the annual controversy between gardeners and dog owners who permit their pets to run at large, in disregard of vicinity gardens, flower beds, shrubbery and premises in general.

With everybody being urged to plant and cultivate a small or large Victory garden this year, the problem of what to do about roaming dogs will assume more than ordinary importance in many minds, and few things are more discouraging to a home gardener than to discover that his potential harvest is being jeopardized by one or more well-intentioned but poorly supervised dogs.

There's an ordinance, of course, and ways of compelling a delinquent dog owner to abate the neighborhood nuisance—but who wants to go to such lengths with an otherwise "good neighbor"?

But this year the vegetables from home gardens will be vitally important, and, as Scattergood Baines might say, "steps should be taken."

Fortunately There's No Water Shortage

AMONG pictures that have come from various fighting fronts is one that shows the care with which cans of drinking water were being unloaded from a ship at a North African port to supply soldiers with this vitally important commodity.

Peculiarly thought-provoking in this connection is the furore that has been caused in Ohio in recent weeks by a whiskey shortage, which has been made to appear of transcending importance.

Even a little show of common sense would have brought rationing of the limited liquor supply several months ago—but even after long delay the state legislature's lower house encountered difficulty in deciding whether a "shall" or a "may" [illegible] should be made a part of the bill now moving [illegible].

Fortunately, there is no shortage of drinking water in Ohio, else 95 per cent of the people might die of thirst before the legislature could get around to taking action to prevent the self-centered 5 per cent from corralling the entire supply.

Newspapers' Help Recognized

THE OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION has issued a public statement thanking the newspapers in the United States for the millions of dollars worth of space they donated to the government in publication of the voluminous data regarding War Ration Book No. 2.

This was an incalculable saving to the government in money and man hours, and a great convenience to the public.

J. P. Morgan's formula for success would have been worthy of a place in the oldtime "copy-book"—when penmanship was still being taught in the schools: "Do your work; be honest; keep your word; help when you can; be fair."

Washington now proposes curtailing the number of blacksmith shops—but surely there'll be no need to make further reduction of "spreading chestnut trees."

Now's the time to decide that there should be no colored baby chicks for Easter—so that all of them may serve a better purpose later in life.

Congress Lags on Major Issues

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Two months after its opening session, congress hasn't yet disposed of one of the major issues which concern the war effort. The feeling is growing here among unbiased observers that unless some of the legislative snarls are untangled soon, congress will again find itself the object of national criticism and editorial comment comparable to the "bundles-for-congress" days.

The best example of delay and heckling is the tax program. After weeks of argument and hearings, the subcommittee of the ways and means committee passed the buck on the Ruml plan, but did recommend collection at source. The committee as a whole, by refusing to do any more than that, in effect passed the buck to the house, which means at best a long legislative fight, confused by too many tongues.

JUST why some form of the Ruml plan was not voted out of committee is a mystery. Originally there were one or two strong arguments against "forgiving" a year's income tax but there were remedial suggestions which wiped these out and left opposition arguments pretty weak.

Two keen students of the congressional scene think that basis for the opposition is purely political — that congressmen from poorer districts are having nightmares about opponents popping up in 1944 with the argument: "This man voted to forgive the millionaires millions while only forgiving you a few dollars." The fact that amendments to the plan could have been worked out to see that nobody really was "forgiven" anything seemed to carry no weight when the committee took its vote.

What the vote amounted to was really a party alignment, with the Democrats opposed to voting out any form of the Ruml plan and all but one Republican favoring reporting out some form of it.

The result may be a showdown house fight between the Democrats, with their slight majority, and the Republicans. Meanwhile, the country had to take the jolt of paying that first quarterly installment and has to get ready to take the second one that will come in June.

* * *

CONGRESS did vote out the lend-lease extension but there were threats that when time for appropriations came up, some strings would be tied to lend-lease funds. That could easily develop into a scrap that would hold up war and navy appropriations, since lend-lease funds this year will not be separate.

Manpower in all its phases and farm prices are just a few more of the problems that congress hasn't gotten around to.

The situation already has become serious enough that a few of the saner heads in congress have taken the floor to warn their colleagues to get on with the work of winning the war.

Dave Boone Says:

IT SURE seems funny to read about congress drawing up plans for a post-war world when it is fumbling and stumbling all over the premises without producing any plan for settling today's most pressing problems. If you can make any sense of the daily reports of its decisions on income tax plans you're a mental wizard.

* * *

John L. Lewis is in his usual spring defiance mood. John's good at defying anybody and everybody any season, but he's always good in the spring.

I never saw anybody who looked less like a man who mined coal than John. It's hard to think of him even bringing up a hod of it from the cellar. Can you imagine him staying down in a coal mine away from microphones, meetings, newspapermen and mimeograph machines very long?

* * *

Well, my hunch is that the old Pattern No. 23-A will be used again. John will call a strike. Washington will get him to call it off on an agreement to name arbitrators, the arbitrators will have their pictures taken and then come out with a decision better that John hoped for.

Timely Editorial

The Real "Security."

The real security, of which we hear so much, is the good man. The real security is character. The security that faces the storms of life and comes through, breathless and battered but unafraid lies within ourselves. The something, invincible within the human spirit is all that endures and all that matters. Remember again — it was quoted here once before—the tablet an English woman put over the ruins which had once been her home: "All the darkness in the world can not put out the light of one little candle."

No man-made plan can take the place of that inner security—in the heart of the man or woman who knows that he has it. One can weave a cloak of security for the mind, and in it one shall not be too cold against the rain.—Grove Patterson in the Toledo Blade.

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

We Asked for It!

MORE than anything else, I'm asking for the wisdom to see things straight these days, without bitterness or sentimentality. And see them through.

We have been safe so long, we Americans. We have been privileged and protected. Now, as the reality of war creeps slowly upon us, we find it almost impossible to place the blame where it should lie—in our own laps.

We rave against Germany and Japan and, to a somewhat lesser degree, against Italy. We remind ourselves, and the listening world, of the bloody horror of Pearl Harbor. We screech about the American Bund and the Quislings who still hold forth within our midst. Most fiercely of all, we complain of the problems which still face us aside from the war—

The farm labor problem.
The housing problem.
The education problem.
The problem of working mother with her neglected children.
The child labor problem.
The restless wife problem.
The transportation problem.
The food rationing problem.
The union problem.

And that's just the beginning. All these problems face us today in their full blown viciousness. And we face them according to our lights, blaming the war, the government, the state laws, cursing out Hitler or Hirohito. Snarling at the Democrats or Republicans.

Accusing every source save that which is truly responsible. Meaning whom? Meaning ourselves.

THE SIMPLE TRUTH IS—NOT ONE OF THESE PROBLEMS IS NEW OR DUE TO THE WAR. THEY HAVE BEEN IN THE MAKING FOR AT LEAST FIFTY YEARS. WE SAW THEM COMING HALF A CENTURY AGO. WE COULD AND SHOULD HAVE FACED THEM, CONSIDERED THEM, STOPPED THEM WHILE THE STOPPING WAS GOOD. THEY ARE, IN ALL THEIR HORROR, THE DIRECT RESULT OF OUR OWN AMERICAN INDIFFERENCE, STUPIDITY, GREED, AND ARROGANCE.

Consider the American boys who will die tonight beneath Japanese bombs and bullets. Those bombs and bullets came from American scrap piles . . . were shipped against the protest of decent American stevedores and furious Chinese patriots.

Consider the appalling increase in juvenile delinquency. That problem has faced us for years, ever since mothers became barflies and the children of empty homes did what and if and when they pleased.

The war did not cause these problems. It merely brought them to a head. It showed us the ghastly price of our American indifference, stupidity, arrogance and complacency.

No people were ever more favored by God and Fortune than the Americans. No people were ever born with nobler ideals and principles. We have had all the makings of good luck and the energy and intelligence to translate it into a happy and abundant life. And, out of our profligacy, we have wasted our rich heritage for a mess of neon-lighted pottage.

YES, WE HAVE A WAR. A WAR WITH A HIDEOUS, DEMORALIZING AFTERMATH. BUT WE ASKED FOR IT. AND UNTIL AND UNLESS WE RECOGNIZE THAT FACT, WE'RE UP AGAINST HELL AND NOTHING ELSE BUT.

International Air Route Interests Battle Grimly Behind the Scenes

WASHINGTON—Congresswoman Clare Luce of Connecticut can take full credit for putting the question of future air routes on the agenda of Anthony Eden and the state department.

Real fact was that Clare was "coked up" to make her air route speech by her Connecticut campaign manager, Sam Pryor, who in addition to being Republican national committeeman, is vice president of Pan American Airways and has been busier than a bird-dog lobbying among senators recently.

Good as his lobbying is, however, Sam's slickest job was getting Clare Luce to do her stuff.

Inside fact is that Pan American Airways is seething mad at the British and vice versa. The British, through a New Zealand company, Yerex, have applied for a license to fly from Rio De Janeiro to Miami, which is a direct invasion of Pan American's monopoly area. So it has thrown all its high-geared lobbying genius into opposing the British in Brazil—and other places.

Meanwhile the British have protested over Pan American's refusal to give them anything except emergency landing privileges at an important air base. This air base is one of the greatest in West Africa, built entirely with U. S. government funds, but owned by Pan American. It has barred the British.

This dog-in-the-manger attitude is one question sure to be discussed by Eden.

Another question for discussion, if the state department is on its toes, is the British dog-in-the-manger attitude in the South Pacific. British policy is more benevolent now that the U. S. A. is supporting its Dominions below the equator. But a short time ago it was another story.

Just one year before the war broke, the state department sent the British a note announcing its desire to claim Canton island and other members of the Phoenix group. But recognizing that the British might have some claims, the state department suggested that both countries join in settling them.

Mr. Eden's foreign office replied evasively. Later it was apparent why. For while the British stalled, a British cruiser quietly visited all the islands, raising the British flag, affixing markers, and leaving small groups of men to clinch their claim on Canton, Phoenix, Hull and Sidney islands.

At this point, forthright Secretary Ickes, in charge of insular affairs, sent a group of Americans to Canton island. So for several months the British lived on one side of the island, the Americans on the other, both claiming it. Finally the state department put the screws on. It flatly refused the British landing privileges on Hawaii, the most vital link between Australia and Canada, unless we got landing rights in the South Pacific.

Necessity for this type of tough diplomacy makes a lot of people listen to Clare Luce's plea that we nail down future air routes while the nailing is good. But wiseheads among them think these bases should be like a union railroad terminal, with rights to all United Nations.

Note: Mrs. Luce's counterpart in England is W. L. Ruciman, of British Overseas Airways, who is always warning that "the Americans are going to over-run the whole of Europe." His father is the man who looked the other way while the Nazis prepared to take the Sudetenland.

War Chaff.

SUPPLIES of radio quartz crystals from Brazil are inadequate to meet tremendous war demands, and the signal corps is scratching for quartz in Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Georgia, Oklahoma, and Arkansas. . . . Signal corps officers have found that police car radios are not sturdy enough for use in tanks. Colonel R. V. D. Corput sent a pair of General Electric officials for a tank ride, with a police radio, and after a mile of open road, the radio was shaken to pieces. . . . Life rafts are now being equipped with radio sending sets, so shipwreck survivors can broadcast an SOS . . . U. S. army is now equipped with plows. They are towed behind a truck for use in wire-laying, to establish communications in the field.

Friends at Court.

IF YOU have the right kind of friends in Washington, you can overrule even the high-handed Facility Review committee of the War Production Board.

This committee sits on a pile of applications for civilian construction of all sorts—hospitals, roads, housing, airports, etc.—and takes pride in its record of turning down almost all applications.

One of its recent rejections was a project for constructing a hospital in Jacksonville, Onslow county, North Carolina. But Jacksonville had some friends at court, and the project refused to stay dead.

Sidney Weinberg, special aide to Donald Nelson, picked up a phone and called a WPB office where he thought the project might have been snagged. "What's happened to that Jacksonville hospital?" he asked.

"It's been ruled out," was the reply.

"But we can't do that," expostulated Weinberg. "Marvin McIntyre is interested in that project. Who ruled it out?" (McIntyre, secretary to the president, has lived and worked in various parts of North Carolina.)

Weinberg was told that the Facility Review committee had vetoed it. "We'll have to have a re-hearing," decreed Weinberg.

Result was that a re-hearing was staged, local officials were brought to Washington from North Carolina at considerable expense, and the committee grudgingly yielded to pressure. Thanks to amiable Marvin McIntyre, the Jacksonville hospital will be built.

Meantime, most projects, lacking highly placed pleaders, fall by the wayside.

Two-Hundred Mile Trip Into Sahara Is Remindful of Scenes In Southwest.

ON THE NORTH AFRICAN DESERT—Most of the American fighting so far in North Africa has been in the mountains, and Americans have seen little of the real desert. But they will sooner or later, so I jumped at the chance to go along on a sortie far into the Sahara, just to see what it would be like.

There were 15 of us in two big 10-wheeled trucks. We took our bedding rolls and enough rations for five days. The purpose of the trip was to salvage the parts from some airplanes that had made crash landings in the desert. Our trip was to take us within 20 miles of German outposts. We weren't much afraid of being captured, but we were afraid of being strafed by German planes.

ERNIE PYLE

WE STARTED one morning, and made a French desert garrison at lunchtime. We got outtins of corned beef, sweet potatoes, peas, orange marmalade and hard tack. The French soldiers built a fire out of twigs between two rocks for us to heat water for tea. They cleared off a table in one of their barrack-rooms for us to eat on, and did every little thing for us they could.

For months I've been carrying around some cigars I got on the boat coming from England, waiting for a propitious moment to give them away. So when we left I gave some to the French soldiers, and you could see the delight on their faces. They all lit up right away, and puffed and held the cigars off and looked at them approvingly, as though they were diamonds.

After we left, our soldiers kept talking about how nice the French were to us, and how they didn't have much but whatever they had they'd give the best to us. The Americans like the French, and everywhere you go on the desert the French are grand to Americans.

This French garrison gave us one of its Arab enlisted men as a guide. He was a picturesque figure, rather handsome in his white turban, blue sash and khaki smock. He carried a long knife and a long-barreled rifle. He spoke no English whatever, and no French that we could understand. He said "wah" to everything we asked him.

He knew the way all right, but the communication system between him and us needed some improvement. All we ever got out of him was "wah." We finally nicknamed him "Wah," and before the trip was over we were all saying "wah" when we meant "yes."

WHAT we saw of the Sahara wasn't exactly like what we see in the movies, but that's maybe because we didn't go far enough into it. The Sahara, you know, is more than 1,000 miles wide, and we were into it no more than 200 miles.

We saw nothing more drastic than what you'll find in the more remote parts of our own southwest. Certainly it was beautiful. At one point it was so utterly flat and bare that you could have landed anywhere and said, "This is an airport."

At other places it had dry river beds, very wide, their bottoms strewn with rocks. This surprised us, for what is a river doing on a desert? Again the country would be rolling, and covered with a scrublike vegetation.

Parts of it were so exactly like the valley around Palm Springs that it made you homesick. Even down to the delicate smoke-tree bush. And one bare, tortured mountain could have been the one behind El Paso. Only once did we see a place with no vegetation at all, where the yellow sand was drifted moviclike in great rippled dunes.

At long intervals we would come to what is known locally as an oasis. I used to think an oasis was three palm trees with a ragged guy crawling toward them, his parched tongue hanging out. But in this part of the desert an oasis is a village or a city. It doesn't have three palm trees: it has tens of thousands of them, forests of them, which make their owners rich from the bounteous crop of dates.

It has big adobe buildings like the Indian pueblos, and narrow streets and irrigation ditches, and hundreds of children running around. It is a big community, and getting to an oasis is like getting to Reno after Death valley.

"DRY HOUSE"

THE OLD "dry house" at Great Uncle Malachi's was on the limestone wall above the fast-flowing spring. The grape vines clambered up its sides and over the hand split clapboards of the roof. The frame was of heavy hand-hewn timbers, and there was a stone chimney at the farther end.

Two sons of the old man's were cabinet makers. They had planed rough poplar lumber into thin shelf boards in which half-inch holes were bored. These shelves lined the upper half of the small rectangular building, with space below for piling wood to burn in the heavy ten-plate stove—source of the driving heat.

On these shelves I saw Great Aunt Rhoda, (and later on, my own mother) spread bushels of apple "schnits." On butcher paper, she spread wild raspberries, blackberries, cherries, plums and apricots. To this same place, in its season, she carried baskets of cooked sweet corn, cut from the cob. I remember we usually had gallons of it in muslin pokes hung half way up the rafters in the attic to keep dry.

The odors that emanated from the cracks of that dry house and from beneath the eaves as the various fruits and vegetables were evaporating were more than an average boy could endure without being overtaken by temptation.

I remember once I slipped inside—the door was never locked, but it fitted snugly—and mother found me there, my cheeks stuffed like a squirrel. She gave me a glance. Far across the years I can still see that little smile behind her frown. My mother understood a small boy's compelling appetite.

THAT small new house I saw a farmer build was not a smoke house. It had a floor inside, and a neat brick chimney at one end. The door was a large homemade one. Inside stood a massive, old-time kitchen range with a big firebox for burning wood. At one side stood two rectangular evaporating pans. Side by side, they exactly filled the top of the range. Beneath the eaves were screened vents where moisture might escape.

"It oughta do us for the duration, at least," the farmer said. "We've got a lot of fruit here—apples, plums, pears, peaches and plenty of berries of all kinds. There's no dehydrating plant within 50 miles. I had a little time right now, and I thought I'd get it ready."

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"Birth certificate? Why do I need that? I ain't gonna work in a war plant yet!"

MISS JANE BOND HAS THURSDAY WEDDING

Beautiful Ceremony Read By Rev. David N. Roller By Candle Light; Reception for 76 Guests Follows at Bride's Parents' Home.

THE BEAUTIFUL WEDDING of Miss Jane Elizabeth Bond and Robert Erwin Wirsch was solemnized Thursday night in an open church ceremony, held at the First Presbyterian church, at 7:30 p. m.

Rev. David N. Roller read the impressive service by candle light before an altar of palms, fern and baskets of white lilies and gladioli. Cathedral candles were placed at the altar.

The program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Mabel Zehner, organist and Mrs. Charles Anglin. Included on their program was "Because" by d'Hardelot and "Through the Years."

The bride, who was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gardenia white jersey wedding gown, fashioned with a long tight draped bodice, full skirt, and extremely long train. The neckline of the gown was made sweetheart style, and sleeves were bracelet length.

The fingertip veil, worn virgin style by the bride, was attached to an off the face style bonnet with edging pearl insertion. She carried an arm bouquet of white gardenias and carnations.

Miss Bond chose her sisters for attendants. Miss Eleanor Bond, maid of honor wore bluet blue and Miss Nancy Bond wore a gown of jonquil yellow. Both were made similar in style as that of the bride's. The very full double net skirt was worn over taffeta. Wide bands of taffetta through the middle extended into bows at the side. Both wore dainty Juliet caps of velvet petals and carried arm bouquets of roses, jonquils and purple iris tied with pastel shades matching their gowns.

Mrs. Bond attended her daughter's wedding in a bluet blue crepe ensemble, with draped skirt. Mrs. Wirsch wore navy blue crepe with matching accessories. Both had orchid corsages.

Arthur Zeider of Sandusky was best man for Mr. Wirsch. Ushers were Norman L. Wolfe, bride's uncle, Voltaire Bechtel and Clarence Hermes, of Sandusky, uncles of the bridegroom and Donald Foley of Toledo.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held for 70 guests at the home of the bride's parents. Luncheon was served buffet style at a long table attractively decorated with a centerpiece of spring flowers and lilies.

After a short wedding trip, the newly married couple will make their home in Sandusky.

The former Miss Bond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bond, Sherman avenue. She is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Virginia Intermont college. She is employed as a stenographer at the Trojan Powder company, in Sandusky.

Mr. Wirsch, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Wirsch, of Sandusky, is a graduate of Sandusky high school. He is an employe of the E. B. Badger and Sons company, in Sandusky.

Out of town guests at the wedding were the bride's aunt, Mrs. G. W. Kenson of Hollywood, Calif., guests from Sandusky, Cleveland, Toledo and Huron. Miss Barbara Cosgrove was also an out of town guest.
